TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidney troubles. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Post-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Written for the Advertiser

Beside the roadway, warming in the sun, in dark brown gutters, where clear waters run, where violets fair and tender baby ferns are born to the earth this Spring returns. And mosses open soft enquiring eyes.

There, warning in the sun, by man betrayed are brown buds of tobacco half decayed. Clear buds too that thrill to feel the kiss of masculine purities after bliss.

And every look that drifts with a weary caress by many lips, in loving ardor pressed, this civilizing evidence of man is mingled everywhere with Nature's plan.

JOY IN TREE PLANTING.

In the early spring the tree fakir is thriving upon the fact for foreign trees and shrubs. About the time the snow disappears in early spring, the tree fakir takes his grubbing hoe, his pruning shears and a ball of twine and goes into the woods. There he grubs up tree sprouts—sumac, oak, alder, hickory, beech, poplar, chestnut—or almost anything else will serve his purpose. These he trims and prunes and ties up in bundles removal to the place where they are to be stored.

When the spring tiding up of the home garden commences the tree fakir makes his appearance in public. He will show pictures of rare Japanese, Chinese, or Mexican or East Indian shrub trees and offer to supply you sprouts at a figure that is most inviting. You see an opportunity to get a plant worth $12 for $1, and then you think of the envy which that queer, red-leaved, Chinese, or Mexican or East Indian shrub tree and offer to supply you sprouts at a figure that is most inviting. You see an opportunity to get a plant worth $12 for $1, and then you think of the envy which that queer, red-leaved, Chinese, or Mexican or East Indian shrub tree and offer to supply you sprouts at a figure that is most inviting.

And then your glorious tree bursts into leaf when you discover that you have bought an ordinary common, everyday sumach or a maple, or perhaps a scrawny little peach tree. Then you lie in wait for him, and you meet with another disappointment. He doesn't come around any more.

The annual meeting of the Oxford conference of Congregational churches will be held with the church at Shelburne on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 12 and 13.

Fire at East Brownfield.

The dwelling house of Mrs. Gideon Sanborn situated at East Brownfield was entirely destroyed by fire, Thursday evening. The fire was discovered in the upper part of the stable about 7 o'clock, and every effort made to subdue it was of no avail.

The buildings had just been thoroughly painted. The loss is fully $1,000, while their insurance is only $1,000. Mrs. Sanborn is a popular postmistress and a very estimable lady, who since the death of her husband has met the duties devolving upon her with courage and efficiency.

TOWN SANITATION.

The Dangers That Exist and Some Remedies Suggested.

That much neglected subject, sanitation, is discussed with a full knowledge of the facts by Dr. G. A. Soper in an address, of which an adequate abstract is printed by the Medical News.

Towns with handsome cottages, green lawns and well kept roads convey an impression so pleasing that few think to inquire whether or not the public health service in them is efficiently performed.

Usually the members of their health boards serve without pay, and not infrequently these bodies contain not a single man with any special training for such work. The water supply is not always pure, and it is not always carefully guarded, sewers are often defective or

SPRING CATARRH.

Noyes Drug Store Sells Hyomei Under Guarantee of Cure.

As a result, Noyes Drug Store had a larger sale of Hyomei the past week than ever before in the years that they have handled this reliable treatment for the cure of catarrh.

Unlike the ordinary remedies that have been used in catarrhal troubles, there is no stomach dosing with Hyomei. It is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, and its balsamic, antiseptic healing penetrates to the most remote cells of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, healing the irritated mucous membrane, and effecting a complete and permanent cure.

If there is a single catarrhal germ in the system, Hyomei will search it out and absolutely destroy it, completely eradicating the trouble. The remedy has made so many cures among Noyes Drug Store's customers that they offer to pay for it themselves if it does not benefit even the worst case of catarrh.

The complete outfit costs only $1, consisting of an inhaler, medicine dropper, and bottle of Hyomei, while extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. There will not be even this small expense if Hyomei does not cure, as Noyes Drug Store will return your money.

A Brook, a Rod, a Trout.

The skies were auspicious. Behind the low gray clouds, threatening rain, and beyond the sun, I do not doubt, my lucky stars were in conjunction, and Pisces reigned in the Zodiac. A soft misty May air brooded over the hills and dales with a certain quality that insinuated itself into the heart of any man with a drop of the old Isaac in him, and gently whispered "Trout!" It was one of those days that demoralize a fisherman's conscience, if he has any, when he suddenly feels that he cannot work at his desk, or work-bench, or plow, when he gets too weak to spade up his wife's flower bed, and forgets to meet his mother-in-law at the station. He just has strength enough to use the spade in a bit of soil, moist mold where the worms grow round and succulent, and to transfer the squirming beauties to a baking-powder can, and his back suddenly gives out just as his wife sees him pick up the last seductive lure.

"What is the matter?" she queries, noticing the drawn look on his face. "Crick in the back," gasps the fisherman. But she does not know that under his breath he spells it this way: "Crick in the back lots!"

On this day I was to demonstrate the probabilities or possibilities in a problem whose conditions were very nearly mathematical in their exactness. Most people think there is a great deal of uncertainty about fishing, especially trout fishing, and they would give long odds in the betting if you told them you were going to drive four miles, catch a certain number of fish of a certain weight, and return in two hours. I would have welcomed any number of these speculative people on this spring morning, for I was full of confidence, ay, I was brimful of the conceit that I was going to be successful.

I made all my preparations deliberately, for all were component parts of the problem of the trout, and it would not do to leave out the last decimal in the calculations for a fortunate fishing. I remembered my jack-knife to cut the willow twig on which to string the prey, I put in the little pocket scales to weigh the speckled beauties, I had extra hooks and lines, I had my water-proof shooting jacket, rubber side out, my wading boots, and I made sure that the joints of the rod fitted, and the line ran free.

Notice the cool calculation with which I started on the quest; no "feverish anxiety," no forgetting an essential. I do not remember that I even whipped my horse in a hurry to arrive at the brook, and I dare say that I recognized acquaintances on the way, just as if I was not bent on a momentous errand, a solution of the workings of the occult powers that reign over fisherman's luck!

I had marked often the fatal spot, but had not yet wet a line there. A brook that started in hillside springs in open fields where it had been dammed years ago, making a succession of little pools for growing watercress, and the cresses still flourished luxuriantly, sure sign of cool, pure water. I gathered a few handfuls. It would be so pretty to garnish the trout for dinner.

The little trout brook crossed the main road, cut off a small angle of a swampy field, turned south, ran under a wooden bridge on a cross road, little traveled, and then flowed into a fairly sized creek by a big willow just over the fence. A solitary, sleepy farm house, a furlong away, cast a slight element of uncertainty into the problem in case the owner and his dog were, both of them, large and ill-natured. Still, I had every advantage, as I had previously noted, for I could stand on the old wooden bridge in the road and drop a line over the fence into the small dark hole shaded with bushes under the old willow and about the large brook. Now, could a farmer sue for trespass if a man merely fished from the road? Could he prove heavy damages if a little line was dropped into the water over the fence, perhaps accidentally, say? Or suppose the line floated under the fence? How could I help it? Are there no such things as flossam and jetsam, and riparian rights, and high-water marks, and the statute of limitation and other legal intricacies by which a poor fisherman might prove his innocence? Thus I thought as I doubled on the hook the most ravishing worm in the box.

However, the land was not "posted," anyway, and who ever heard of a man being arrested for fishing in the road? So with no more trepidation, I dropped the line gently into the dark, deep pool. So far I had carried out the conditions of the problem all right. My trusty little trotter was just a hundred-yard stretch away. In case of the dog entering the problem, I could do that hundred yards in twelve seconds, perhaps in eleven, or ten, or one-half, if I dropped everything, including the trout—a considerable weight. Meanwhile the slender-jointed lancewood described a beautiful curve over the water. I wait a moment or two. I know that a very motion had been as silent as fate. Silence was part of the problem. Everything had gone right. I had done my part. I must get the trout. No fish could doubt the working of the occult powers, the conjunction of the planets, the favoring nod of nature, and the weather, the mathematical calculations, that shining, slender pole, that silken line, and especially that ravishing worm!

I dropped the line again, seductively, and something moved off with it like a suburban clerk after an eight o'clock train. Dancing on the willow rod, in a shower of drops, iridescent, scintillating, up he came out of the brook, over the fence, out of the farmer's domain into mine, plump on the old wooden bridge, a lovely trout, eleven and a half inches long, a pound and five-eighths by the scales. There he lay with his royal insignia of gold and rubies. Imagine a trout took a back seat. This was no dream. It was a trout. I could hug him. Pardon me, reader, but I confess it was my first trout. And could any one have wished for a prettier setting for such a memorable experience? More over, the problem was all right. Mathematics was vindicated. I had got "the answer."

Curiously, I did not care to fish any more that day. Perhaps it was a suspicious activity that the farm house, perhaps I feared it was a delusion and I must get that fish as far from water as possible. He might be a vanishing Unicorn of my return to the bosom of my family, and he trooked. He was fished in trout and trooked. The little family endorsed him unequivocally. Was he my last trout? I leave you to guess.

Before a disinterment can lawfully be made, a permit from the State board of health is required in addition to the usual permit from the town or city clerk. The selectmen have nothing to do with these matters now.

Paint "Mixed on the Premises"

The best architects always specify: "Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil in original packages, to be mixed on the premises." These are two re-make sure no used in the place of Pure White Lead; and second, that the paint shall be mixed to suit the particular wood and the climatic conditions of the locality.

If architects with scientific knowledge and professional reputation are so careful to make sure that only the best materials shall be used, is it not quite as incumbent on the house owner to do as much for himself, when not employing professional aid?

Painters of reputation never quarrel with these specifications, because they realize the materials called for are necessary to a satisfactory job. If a painter is conscientious, he will of his own accord use nothing but White Lead which is known to be pure. The standard is

To Our Soldier Dead.

Memorial day exercises at Bryant's Pond was under the charge of A. M. Whitman Post, G. A. R. Jas. L. Bowker was the marshal of the day. Early in the day the Post members, accompanied by the Bryant's Pond Cornet Band, took barges for Locke's Mills, and decorated the graves in that place.

At 1 o'clock the line was formed for the march to the cemetery. The K. of P., commander Fred M. Cole, acted as escort. The band, school children carrying wreaths and flags, the Post and citizens made up the column. At the service a memorial song was sung, the adjutant of the Post read the memorial orders from the national and department commanders, after which commenced the decoration of the graves. The wreaths and flags were placed by children under the direction and escort of Lieut. M. T. Dear. As each grave was decorated the color bearer dipped the flag, which added to the impressiveness of the scene. A soldier of the British army lies buried in this little cemetery and his grave was also decorated with the Post's colors.

At the hall commander Bowker acted as chairman. There was singing by the choir, the address by L. C. Bateman of Dewiston and a song by Master Richard Johnson.

EAST SUMNER.

Memorial Services.

Memorial Day was observed at East Sumner. The ladies of the Relief Corps served a dinner to the veterans and their families at noon in the vestry of the Congregational church. Commander Frank J. Brown presided at the afternoon exercises in the church which began at 1:30. The Star Spangled Banner and other selections by a local choir were finely rendered. Prayer was offered by Rev. L. W. Muttart. There was a reading by Mrs. H. S. Robinson, who is the daughter of a veteran, and recitations by several school children.

The address by Rev. G. Walter Fisk of Auburn, which was listened to with rapt attention by the service, was said to be one of the best ever delivered. Mr. Fisk spoke of the crying need of political corruption who would hold the right to vote as a sacred trust.

At the close of the services, members of Wm. A. Barrows Post G. A. R. Sons of Veterans, the W. R. Corps and a delegation of citizens marched to the cemetery where brief but impressive exercises were held. One of S. C. Conard led in the singing of America. All seemed to feel that the fires of patriotism had been kindled anew in their hearts. In the town of Sumner the graves of about 150 soldiers were decorated with flags and flowers.

Maxim's Maxims.

Aim high but be sure your gun is loaded.

Almost any calamity that knocks the conceit out of a man may be considered profitable.

What can't be endured must be cured.

If all people had consciences and obeyed them much misery would be prevented.

It never pays to regret anything.

Wm. S. Bickford, Robert F. Bickford and Ross L. Bickford have formed a company under the name of Bickford Bros. They deal in State of Maine goods and do lapidary work. Ross L. Bickford is the manager.

The old wooden bridge on Pleasant street, between Main and Water streets, has been taken up preparatory to putting the new iron bridge in place. The iron bridge arrived several days ago. This part of Pleasant street is now closed to travel with the exception of a foot bridge.

Sadie Millett is visiting in Hanover, Mass. Miss Millett is to do tailoring at A. W. Thomas' this summer. Mr. Thomas is expecting a goodly number of summer boarders at his house. This is a justly popular summer boarding farm. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were landlord and landlady of the famous Andover House at Andover, and well understand how to care for their guests.

Rev. S. G. Davis preached an interesting sermon at the Universalist church, Sunday, on the San Francisco Disaster. Mr. Davis spoke of the heroism and courage of the people. He spoke principally on the bright side of the question, telling how a better planned city would arise from the ruins. How the wicked portions of the city were destroyed particularly in Chinatown, where the most wicked dens of the whole city were located. It is his belief that these places will never be restored. Throughout the entire sermon Mr. Davis pointed out the good which will come from the disaster.

Letter to Rev. C. A. Brooks.

Norway, Maine.

Rev. Sir: In making pastoral visits, of course, you do not consider your pleasure or comfort or ease; you go where your people live. But you have two sets of feelings in going about—can't help it—we all have. But you, especially, have; for a part of your business is sympathy. Well-kept lawns and well-tended fields, nice homes and nice people, are cheerful to you, as they are to everyone. Tumble-down buildings, poor fences, men harassed by burdens too heavy for them, overworked women, and dirty-faced children, you may be strong to get on with; but you would be more than human to find inspiration in misery.

Paint divides the two sorts of people: one paints, and the other don't. Or, perhaps, the thrifty paint well; the unthrifty paint ill.

To paint well is to keep paint sound. There are two ways to do it: one is bound to paint often; the other to use good paint.

It costs about half as much to paint Devos as to paint with any other paint; for Devos takes fewer gallons than mixed paints and wears twice as long as lead-and-oil.

The thrifty and comfortable have the art of using money more wisely. How lucky they are! How happy!

Yours truly,
F. W. Devos & Co.

Democratic Caucus.

The political pot boiled briskly Saturday. At two o'clock the Democratic caucus was held in the Opera House.

A. S. Kimball was chosen moderator and Ralph I. Thayer, secretary. Five delegates were elected to attend the Democratic State convention to be held in Bangor, June 20 as follows:

Harry Kendall, Dr. R. F. Bradbury, James N. Tabbs, Henry B. Foster, Chas. E. Holt, A. P. Farnum.

Seven delegates were elected to attend the district convention to be held in Auburn, June 7, as follows:

F. P. Towne, E. P. Tabbs, Harry Kendall, F. P. Thurston, Howard Moulton, Chas. E. Holt, A. P. Farnum.

The following seven delegates were elected to attend the county convention to be held in South Paris:

James Shedd, Fred S. Frost, Walter W. Frost, Geo. E. Allard, Geo. E. Walker, S. H. Millett, Ralph I. Thayer.

The Thayer committee was elected for the years 1907 & 1908 as has been serving, viz:

Merton L. Kimball, Geo. A. Brooks, Solomon H. Millett, Albert P. Farnham, Edgar J. Hobbs.

Republican Caucus.

At three o'clock a large crowd gathered at the Opera House. The meeting was called to order by John A. Roberts and Mr. Roberts was chosen chairman.

G. L. Curtis was elected secretary but declined and A. J. Stearns was chosen.

On account of a good many present who wanted to attend the ball game the article to elect delegates to the State convention was passed over and the district convention was taken up. It voted to elect all the delegates on one ballot and that they be instructed in favor of Hon. John P. Swasey. The result was 71 for Littlefield and 162 for Swasey.

Mr. Swasey had been telephoned for from here in the morning and arrived in an automobile. He was in the hall and in reply to a call for a speech spoke in part as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention—I thank you kindly for your expression of confidence in me. I was born in Oxford County, I have always lived there and I expect to die and be buried there. I have taken pleasure in the confidence and loyalty that the Republicans of Norway have reposed in me. When I was telephoned this morning that I was needed as there was a strong movement on foot to defeat me in the caucus I had one of the worst shocks that I ever experienced in my political life. I regard the people of Oxford County as my home people. I am a Republican and glory in the record of that grand old party.

"I am an independent candidate and if I am elected and go to Congress I shall go untrammelled, pledged to no ring or machine but shall go free to act. I have just received word that the little town of Webster right in the shadow of Lewiston, has elected three Swasey delegates. I want my countrymen to stand by me. I have not been into Knox County as I want to leave Mr. Littlefield's territory alone and want him to do the same by me. I have not said one word against Mr. Littlefield and I shall not but I love the Republican party more than any Littlefield that was born or ever will be."

The delegates to the district convention were:

John A. Roberts, Simon Harriman, Frank A. Danforth, George H. Dunn, Herbert F. Andrews.

To the State convention:

A. J. Stearns, G. W. Ryerson, E. L. Horne, Oates S. Kideout, S. C. Foster.

There was rather a spirited discussion over the election of county delegates and town committee all on one ballot, but the matter was soon settled by the election of the committee on one ballot and the election of town committee one at a time which resulted as follows:

C. F. Barnes, Dr. H. L. Bartlett, Geo. H. Dunn, Dr. J. J. Jones, E. H. Howe, W. Murray Russell, A. L. Sanborn.

A Good Work in New Hampshire.

"New Hampshire Summer Homes" has just been issued by Ex-Governor N. J. Batchelder, Sec. of the State Board of Agriculture. It is a handsome book, finely illustrated. In the preface he says:

"It is a statement capable of proof that the summer 1905 saw more visitors within the State of New Hampshire than any previous season had recorded. And a larger portion than ever of these visitors were summer residents; that is, people owning their own homes in the Granite State, homes made, largely, upon what were once abandoned farms. At the same time, those New Hampshire white hotels which cater wholly or in large part to the patronage of summer visitors reached a higher average of prosperity than ever before. A proof and a result of this happy condition are combined in the erection of some new hotels of this class, and the enlargement of others."

The ADVERTISER has just received a copy, and this fourth edition of "Summer Homes" is a credit to the work going on in New Hampshire and to Ex-Gov. Batchelder, to whose effort is largely due the improvements that have been made along these lines. As Gov. Batchelder attended the same school with the editor this book and work has more interest than the work of a stranger.

BETHEL.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Hastings, who recently purchased the Howard House in Bethel, have moved here from Bangor. Mr. Hastings was a former resident here.

The annual baccalaureate sermon before the senior class of Gould Academy was delivered by Rev. Charles N. Gleason in the Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Arthur E. Barker, a brother of C. E. Barker of West Bethel, has been employed in the government printing office at Washington for the past 15 years. He has been promoted to be chief clerk, superintendent of documents office. He will have direct supervision of the book-keeping and clerical force of the office, and in general act as assistant to the superintendent, but assume full control in the absence of the superintendent.

Graduating exercises at Gould Academy, Bethel, were held at Odeon hall, June 7. The sermon before the graduating class was given by Rev. C. N. Gleason at the Congregational church, Sunday. The reception will occur at Odeon hall, Friday evening.

William Mark Brooks.

Death of Oxford County's Veteran School Teacher.

Mr. Brooks was a brilliant scholar and self-made man and has probably taught more schools than any other man in the State. He was the son of William and Dorcas B. Brooks and was born in Paris, Oct. 11, 1827. He received his education principally in the town schools and had several terms of a higher grade at Norway Liberal Institute, Norway; Oxford Normal Institute, South Paris; and Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Kent's Hill.

He was an industrious and assiduous student and acquired a knowledge in the classics equal to, if not superior to many colleagues. What he once committed to memory he never forgot.

Mr. Brooks taught over 125 schools and for 47 years he was a member of the school board in Woodstock. Among the schools he has taught are:—High Street, Paris; West Paris; 12 terms at North Paris; Oxford village; Bryant's Pond; State Reform school, Woodstock; Rumford; Pike's Hill, Norway; North Norway; Yaggar, Norway; Greenwood; Berlin Falls, N. H.; Gardner, Mass.; Royal Academy, N. H.; and many others.

For several years he taught in the town school. He began teaching when he was sixteen years old with the intention of making it his life work and not as many teachers do, a stepping stone to be discarded.

He considered it of first importance to get the scholars interested in their work the first of the term and impressed upon their mind the importance of being largely self-governors and self-educators, to learn the way as well as the how.

His excellent method of instruction combined with a happy faculty to preserve discipline made his schools of a high order, and himself a popular instructor.

In one of his schools he had a girl who had been unusually bright. She had been taught by him and she was a very good scholar. He remonstrated with and pleasantly admonished her, but to no avail. She grew more and more unruly. One day when she was passing through the change of life, she was unusually vexing, he called her from her seat into the door. She obeyed the summons. He quietly took her up on his knee, trod her and praised her as being a good and beautiful little girl, a pattern of gentility and a little lady of fine attainments. The scholars were filled with merriment. She broke down entirely and sobbed convulsively and begged to take her seat. She was completely subdued and there was no better behaved scholar in school afterwards.

Mr. Brooks was twice married. His first wife was Mary A. Jordan and his second wife was Ellen Witham, both of whom have passed away. He has three children, Mrs. Mary Jones of Winchester, Mass., Mrs. Blanche Wilkins of Turner and a son in the West. He had several brothers and sisters all of whom are now dead but Mrs. A. H. Witham of Norway.

His remains were brought here, Saturday, and the funeral held at the home of Mrs. A. H. Witham, Sunday, Rev. S. G. Davis officiating. Burial at Pine Grove cemetery.

Our Indian Names.

How Some of Them in Maine Puzzle the Scholars.

Just as the names of the French Canadians in Maine are being Anglicized, and thus, while simplified, robbed of their beauty, so are the original Indian names of towns and rivers, lakes and localities, rapidly disappearing. The clipped syllables and generally twisted about to suit the convenience of a non-sentimental and intensely practical people. The United States post-office department has succeeded in clipping the last three letters have been removed from Waldoborough, which now reads Waldo, boro, and so on. When it comes to Indian names, however, a much greater difficulty is presented, and generally these names are being lost by a radical reconstruction or corruption. For instance, it is difficult to make anything new out of Mattawamkeag or Passadumkeag, and Passadumkeag is still official, although Maine people call it "Quoddy for short."

Originally the locality of Bangor was called by the Tarratine or Penobscot Indians Kadesquit. Then it became Kondekeag, Kondekeag, and finally Kennebec—all though the varying fancy of succeeding generations of white men.

The name of Maine's highest mountain has been spelled at various times by various authorities, Ktaadn, Ktahdn, and is now generally recognized Katahdin. In a stream in the region has been called Wassataquoik, Wassataquoik, and Wassata cook, and today the lumbermen call it "Satacook. Molunkus, Ripogonus and Nicanotus are simple enough to the man who tries to simplify. Pokwookamus, Sourdabunk, Passadumkeag, Katesconogon, (generally called Debsconogon), Caucomogon, or Chem-quasabamkeag. Aboljackmagasset, Aboljackmagasset, or Aboljackmagasset, is generally clipped by the lumbermen to Abol, and in fact is so called by nearly everybody, on the plea that life is too short to wander through all the syllables that rightly belong to the name of that stream.

Any one of the Indian names is a terror to the postal clerks, but there is one that men of letters particularly abhor, because of the many and often absurd ways in which people spell it. This is Wytopitlock seemingly simple enough, but in every day affairs a name strange, twisted and turned. Wytopitlock is a little post-office in Reed plantation

Pierce Pond's Camps

Home of Big Salmon.

The writer was invited by E. A. Merriam of Madison last winter to visit Pierce Pond Camps above Bingham on a fishing trip. The stories of big salmon and trout coming from those waters have been current for some years past and were promptly accepted. Not that we really expected to get a big fish, but was in a new country for us and then you know we might get a small whale. We were assured there were plenty of pond trout in that vicinity eager to take fly. Both of these statements made by Mr. Merriam proved true.

The route taken to Pierce Pond was by the way of Lewiston, Brunswick and Waterville. In the latter city we had sufficient time to call on D. Cromett Clark, day editor of the Sentinel. He papers and manuscripts but with "sufficient copy ahead" for thirty minutes chat. He appears very much the same Clark as when he worked for us and thoroughly believes in the Cyrus Davis strain of Democracy and renaissance.

The office of the Somerset Reporter of Skowhegan was visited and an inspection trip over town taken with Mr. E. E. McNally of that paper. Here are some good macadam roads. Pictures of some of the shown in Road Commissioner Sargent's Report. These roads are expensive but they are all right.

Skowhegan has a diversity of industry and has a population of over 6,000. It is one of the most prosperous and substantial towns in the State.

We went over the route of the Somerset Traction Co. to Madison where the mills of the Great Northern Paper Co. make the town. Ex-Editor Merriam of the Bulletin showed us about. This town has grown up quickly and has a prosperous look.

H. C. Prince, owner of the Bulletin was "up river" chasing a phantom story regarding the Page-Tucker murder and we found him at Bingham. Here we met Dr. Harry Noyers, a former Norway boy, who is doing a prosperous business, and we presume frightening some of the horses with his automobile.

The Saunders Bros., who came from North Waterford a few years ago are doing a big business in their birch mill and we hope it is the big industry of the town. There is a peg mill here but we understand little is being done in it at present.

Bingham has a population of about 1,200. It has a good hotel, good roads, schools and churches and is very prettily located.

At Carratunk, 15 miles up river we crossed the Kennebec in a bateau. The baggage was conveyed to Pierce Pond dam lashed on a sled drawn by a pair of horses. The distance is four miles and the rise of land some 500 feet. Two miles from the dam are the camps of the Pierce Pond sporting club of Madison.

The Robin.

One of the most welcome and certain signs of spring in New England is the arrival of the robin, and he puts in an appearance about the last of March, or, if advanced, sometimes he comes the first of the month. The robin is so common and plentiful that his beauty is rarely appreciated. If you get a chance to look at one carefully, note how clean he keeps his plumage, see what a deep black the feathers on the head are and how there is a little white spot near the eye. His back is somewhat grayish and the wings brown. The tail is black with the end tipped with just a bit of white.

The robin is very tame. Sometimes he will build his nest in a vine on your piazza, or in a tree in the orchard. He likes to be near people and he never does anybody any harm. Only a naughty boy would want to hurt a robin. When robin red breast we sometimes call him, arrives with his mate, they straightway set about building a nest. Sometimes a pair will appear year after year and build their home in the same tree or on the same projection of a shed. Usually the nest is at least 10 feet from the ground, so that cats and little boys will not molest. Sometimes it is in a lofty tree crotch, but this is not usual, as the little birds, when they first try to leave the nest, fall and are hurt if the nest is too high.

The outside of the nest is made almost entirely of dry grass. There is a mud lining of soft grass. There are usually two beautiful blue eggs and they hatch in a little over two weeks. After then father and mother robin bustle for worms for the next month. By the middle of May the baby robins are so large that they push each other about and are obliged to leave the nest. Then comes a time of great anxiety. The children must be fed and they are hungry rather than ever. There is danger on every side, and it is a lucky father that rears all four. The baby robin has a grayish breast, all spotted with black, and it looks something like a check-board.

When July comes the young robin must look out for herself as father and mother robin are planning to raise another family. If you will notice that he has a funny habit of pumping his tail up and down vigorously once or twice. On days just after it rains you can see him scudding along the ground, cocking his head to one side and looking for an unwary worm. Suddenly he will dart forward and pull from the ground a long worm. This he gathers up and takes home to feed in bits to the baby robins. The robin is a good indicator of coming rainy weather, and just before it rains you can hear plaintive little notes of warning. The robin gets up early in the morning, and while he doesn't sing a long song, there are cheerful little snatches of music all day. When night comes he goes back to the nest or puts his head under his wing and gets a little sleep.

The robin belongs to the thrush family and is the most friendly member of that tribe. Rarely do you find robins in the heart of city unless there are trees, yet the robin likes to be near people, and will often fly up to your doorstep to eat crumbs. Nobody ever counted the robins, but millions of them arrive every season, and there is hardly a town in New England that is not visited. In a little town outside of Boston a young man recently counted the nests of 60 robins on a 15 acre farm, and if that ratio was kept up there would be more robins in Massachusetts than there are men and women. A naturalist estimates that there are about a million robins in the Bay State, and that's a good many. A professor who watched some robins in captivity, computed that a robin could eat 14 feet of earth worms in a half day, and he says that 50 robins eat a million caterpillars in a season. The robin is the friend of the farmer, and your friend, so be kind to him and don't disturb his nest.

How to Drink Water
 How and when and where we drink water seems to most of us such an unimportant part of our daily existence that we really give the matter very little thought. It seems so much like something for nothing that we neglect what is really not only a preventive but a panacea for many ills.

A beginning of kidney troubles lies in the fact that people, especially women, do not drink enough water. A few general hints are well worthy of consideration. Try to drink as little water as possible with meals, but take a glassful about half an hour to an hour before eating, says the Portland Evening Express. This rule alone, persisted in will improve the general health and the complexion likewise.

Water taken with meals should be sipped as well as taken sparingly. Ice water should be taken as seldom as possible, never would be a better rule. And the habit of putting chopped ice in the drinking water is to be avoided, as one never knows what may be taken into the stomach through this seductive. The better way is to fill bottles with water and allow them to stand beside ice to chill.

Tests which have been made show that one gill of ice water, which means an average of half a pint, poured hastily down the throat reduces the temperature of the stomach so that it takes more than half an hour to regain the heat it has lost.

Cold water sipped slowly will quench the thirst and not cause such a result. When in doubt about the purity of the drinking water, the following simple test can be made: Pour a pint into a perfectly clean bottle, cork it securely and allow it to stand for six hours. If it has an unpleasant odor, beware.

The most important things to remember about drinking water are: First, be sure that it is pure; second, drink generously between meals, but sparingly with them; third, avoid chilling the body with ice water taken hurriedly and in large quantities.

As to hot water, there is no end to the good that may be acquired through this simple remedy. Cold-blooded people, who have little thirst, will do well to make a business of drinking a certain amount of hot water every day throughout the season.

The heavy shower of rain Friday was just the kind the timid like. There was a good deal of water and a very little thunder and lightning.

San Francisco sends word that there is no further demand for old clothes and second-hand furniture in the stricken city, and the people out there don't care for it even as a donation. All right, our New England rummage sales will now be resumed.

OXFORD.

Memorial Observance.
 There were 32 veterans and nearly a hundred children in the procession which opened at Robinson hall Wednesday afternoon and was led by the Oxford High school band. Twenty-six graves were decorated in the two cemeteries after which all marched to the Methodist church and participated in the dinner served in the vestry by the ladies of the Relief Corps.

In the afternoon the oration was delivered by Rev. Fredrick Newport and was said to be one of the best ever delivered in Oxford. A quartette composed of Messrs. George Jones, E. H. Pratt, Leland Stone and Perley French sang appropriate selections.

Seth Ames recently purchased a horse in Otisfield.

After a rest of two weeks W. E. Frye's saw mill has started again.

Annie Hazen, who has employment in Portland is at home sick with the measles.

Several Lewiston citizens were fishing in the brooks around Oxford station on Memorial day.

Grace Farnham, a student at Miss Sawyer's type writing school in Portland, spent Memorial day at home.

Rev. W. T. Chapman of the Methodist church is in ill health and was unable to attend the Memorial exercises.

The Oxford boys received their first defeat of the season from the Norway boys last Wednesday. This Saturday they will play the Volunteers of Lewiston at the grounds here. Another game with the Reddicks of Norway is scheduled for June 8 at Norway.

Mrs. Rachel Morse died Wednesday forenoon after an illness of several months. She was 79 years of age, and leaves besides her husband, David Morse, three sons by a former marriage, Albion, Aaron and John Henry Smith, all of Oxford. Mr. Morse is himself an invalid having suffered a shock some three years ago.

WEST FRYEBURG.
 A New Potato Planter.
 H. D. E. Hutchins and Walter Hardy purchased a potato planter this spring, which they are using for the benefit of the farmer who plant a quantity of potatoes. Next comes the potato digger, later on.

Mrs. A. S. Farrington entertained her sister-in-law, Miss B. W. Farrington, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Westcott of Intervale, N. H., were recent guests of her sister, Mrs. Frank Eastman.

Dr. Archie Evans of Brooklyn, N. Y., was a guest of his cousin, Mrs. H. D. E. Hutchins, last week. Mrs. Hutchins and her son visited her father, Alvan Evans, at North Lovell a couple of days. Dr. Evans returned to Brooklyn, N. Y., May 22.

Mrs. D. C. Ballard and little daughter, with her mother, Mrs. Moody, is spending some weeks among friends and relatives in Jackson, N. H. It is hoped the bracing air of that famous town in the mountains will be beneficial to Mrs. Ballard whose health is much impaired.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh of the Eustachian tube. It is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness if you can furnish a name that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
